

IT IS HIGGINS.

Gov. Stone Selects a Recorder of Voters.

The Superintendent of the Fire Alarm Telegraph Service Chosen.

HIGGINS WAS LIEUT.-GOV. JOHN B. O'REILLY'S PREFERENCE.

Who the Other Candidates for the Office Were—A Sketch of the Winner—His Probable Success in the Office Which He Vacates.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 8.—Gov. Stone has appointed Chas. P. Higgins Recorder of Voters for the city of St. Louis.

The announcement of Higgins' appointment was particularly well received in St. Louis, where the Recorder-elect has long been a familiar figure. It was there that Mr. Higgins laid the foundation for his political career by establishing a business connection with the influential business men.

Gov. Francis said: "Higgins is a good fellow," which was a statement he could have expected to say, perhaps, under the circumstances.

Judge Jones said that under no circumstances would his son James have accepted the position, and that those who said that Mr. Higgins laid the foundation for his political career by establishing a business connection with the influential business men.

The appointment is looked upon by the politicians as, first of all, a compliment to Higgins.

The New Recorder of Voters—Charles P. Higgins.

Lieut.-Gov. O'Reilly. The latter has been all along an outspoken Higgins man, and of late, while the governor's lips have predicted the appointment of Higgins with the air of a man who has laid the foundation for his political career by establishing a business connection with the influential business men.

O'REILLY GETS BACK.

The Deputy Building Commissioner Scores a Point on the Mayor.

A conference held by the Mayor, City Attorney and President of the Council yesterday evening the status of affairs in the field case as incidentally touched upon, but Mayor Berkeley said this morning that no further action would be taken by him at present. City Building Commissioner J. O'Reilly said this morning that the attempt of the Mayor to throw the entire blame upon the present entanglement would not have the desired effect of forcing him to resign.

Mrs. Vorhauer's Cross Bill. Miss Vorhauer filed her cross bill to the suit for divorce brought by her husband, Emil Vorhauer. She says that she was married on Nov. 28, 1894, and became pregnant while her husband was in the army. She claims that he was with her during the pregnancy, and that he was with her during the pregnancy.

BOMBS AND PISTOLS.

The Casting of One Accompanied by the Free Use of the Other.

Chicago, Ill., April 8.—The election of alderman and town tickets was attended by many bombs and disturbances. The ball opened with a free-for-all fight in the Twenty-third Ward, in which several ward leaders and policemen were badly bruised.

Later in the day the followers of John Coughlin, the Democratic alderman candidate in the First Ward, threw a bomb which killed a man and wounded several others. The bomb was thrown from a second-story window, and caused great excitement, but no one was hurt.

In the Fourteenth Ward Samuel Phelps was shot at a polling place by John Marshall and was not recovered. Few arrests were made.

REVERSED.

The Court of Appeals Decides Against Mary E. Maloney.

Judge Withers' ruling in the case of Mary E. Maloney against the Real Estate Building and Loan Association was reversed in the Court of Appeals and the appeal dismissed. The decision is an important one inasmuch as it settles a new point on the Building and Loan Association question, and establishes a precedent. The plaintiff was the owner of ten shares of stock in the Real Estate Building and Loan Association, and she claimed that the association had wrongfully taken her shares.

The defense was that under the by-laws of the association, the shares were not transferable, and that the plaintiff had no right to them.

The court decided in favor of the plaintiff, and the association was ordered to return the shares to her.

The court also decided that the association had no right to take the shares of the plaintiff without her consent.

AN UNEXPECTED WITNESS CONFRONTS

Defendant Breckinridge.

The Typewriter Who Copied Letters He Wrote to Miss Pollard.

THEY ADDRESSED THE PLAINTIFF AS "MY DEAR SISTER LOUISE."

Yesterday Breckinridge swore he knew nothing of these letters—Did Not Write Them, and Never Heard of the Witness, Miss Lowell, Who Swears He Paid Her to Do the Copying—A New Phase of the Celebrated Case.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—A battle royal of wit between ex-Judge John Wilson, Miss Pollard's counsel, and W. C. P. Breckinridge was expected to-day, after the sparring yesterday. Both are men of great ability, and pitted against each other as examiner and witness they are in a field well fitted for the full display of all the tact and adroitness of both.

When court opened to-day for the resumption of the cross-examination, the distinguished defendant in the breach of promise trial the interest in the case was intensified by the presence of two ladies whose faces had not been seen before, sitting at the table with the Pollard forces, and from the passage which had closed the examination, returned to the court place by the witness.

The first of the ladies was Miss Lowell, the typewriter who copied the letters, and the second was Miss Pollard, since the latter had made a very deep impression on her mind.

When the examination of Breckinridge began, the judge ruled out the examination concerning the contents of the letters, Mr. Butterworth made a brief cross-examination, asking Mrs. Lowell where she had worked and for how long. She had kept a record of her work, and the amounts received in an account book. She had an inkling of the contents of the letters, and she had seen the letters of Miss Pollard, since the latter had made a very deep impression on her mind.
